THE SUN.

WEEKLY, SEMI-WEEKLY, AND DAILY THE WEEKLY SUN is too widely known to any extended recommendation; but the reasons which have already given it fifty thousand subscribers, and which will, we hope, give it many thousands more, are briefly as follows:

It is a first-rate newspaper. All the news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment, and always presented in a clear, intelligible, and interesting manner.

It is a first-rate family paper, full of of entertaining and instructive reading of every kind, but containing nothing that can offend the most delicate and scrupulous taste.

indermine republican institutions altogether. It has no fear of knaves, and asks no favors from their supno fear of knews, and the markets porters.

It reports the fashions for the ladies and the markets for the man, especially the cattle-markets, to which it pays particular attention.

Finally, it is the cheapest paper published. One dollar a year will secure it for any subscriber. It is not necessary to get up a club in order to have THE WEEK-LY SUN at this rate. Any one who sends a single dollar will get the paper for a year.

Literary Notices.

THE ALDINE-for December presents large number of very fine engravings. Some of them are of high merit, among which we name "The Little Brother," "The Love Token," and "Haidee." The first of these represents a young mother with an infant on her lap, the little one rioting and kicking in an exuberance of delight while being caressed and fondled by a sister of some six summers. Both design and execution are admirable. In a picture of an ancient castle now in ruins, and left to the owl and the heron the effect of dense and luxuriant foliage growing in a wild state of desolation is exceedingly good. Besides other wholepage engravings, there are several pleas ing minor illustrations, which add to the wealth of the present number—the last by the way, of the sixth volume. In the literary portion, a well-written account of "The Siamese Christmas," by Mrs. A. H. Leonowens, is full of interest, and being the result of personal observation it is of much value. There is also a pretty Christmas Idyl by Alice M. Guernsey. The Aldine, as an artistic work, is unsurpassed. THE NATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACH ER-for December is on our table. A week ago last Saturday we were honored with a very pleasant visit of two his aged father, of Wolcott, N. Y., who, although an uneducated Englishman, is a property owner. They were both, as they appeared, in good health and excellent spirits.

We shall endeavor to give in a subsequent issue of the Journal a short biographical sketch of the old man, which will, we trust, be of considerable interest to our readers.

We are pained to learn that Mr. Walter Fullerton, of Hansibal, is prostrated with cancer of two kinds, one inside of his cheek and the other on his hand. He had, as we understand, been to Rome to receive medical treatment under Dr. Kingsley; but so far had the disease spread down his throat that all hope of saving him has been abandoned. At the present time he is failing, and has sent for Mr. Edward C. Benedict to interpret religion for him, he being an uneducated man, The thought that Mr. Fullerton may live but a few months longer is a sad one; when he is gone his loss will be felt by a large circle of friends, as he has and in comfortable circumstances.

How to Do It.

We have before spoken of the evil effects of giving deaf-mutes situations which they cannot acceptably fill. We have maintained that it degrades the deaf and dumb as a class, because the hearing and speaking world will generally judge the whole community by what they see in one deaf-mute, that is as far as business capacity goes; in other things just so long will deaf-mutes find it hard at the dedication of the College : to obtain situations for whose duties they are perfectly capable, and which they would doubtless obtain were it not for the old prejudice. We have noticed that this wholesale generalizing does not ty which may be discovered; we know community in general, from the intellistanding displayed by a few particular cases. All that is wanted, then, to gain a great social ground is to make this imcredit. The way to do this is not to deare fitted for and no more.

Let us give a practical instance : A deaf-mute is employed in a position under the government. He works faithfully, understands his business and his duty, and does it. His superiors are pleased. They think a deaf-mute is of industrious, honest ways of the mute under their supervision, and they think that if there were several more mutes just like him in the department, the department would be the gainer thereby. So when several vacancies occur they call this mute to them and ask him if he a good time. don't know of some other mute that would like a position similar to his one that could perform its duties as well as: knows of such a mute, they will do all they can to get him a place, for they believe in deaf-mutes in their department. The mute naturally asks them if they have seen Mr. So and So, who is interested in the deaf, and might supply just the man they want. But they reply no, they have not seen him, but would prefer one of his (the mute's) friends, for they generalize that he must have good mute friends. The mute says he has friends enough, and will go and see them

The toregoing is a recital of what has actually occurred. It is fact. And the reader will see that it means just what

The storm of Sunday, while it deterred many from venturing out, did not prevent a fair sized assembly at St. Michael's church, in the evening, on the occasion of a service for deaf-mutes, by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Gallaudet, of St. Ann's Church for deaf-mutes, in New York city. The regular evening service was read by Rev. Pimm, and turned to the Colonel and politely observed : "A pleasant day." but of course heard no sound, and not wishing to lose what might be a matter of vital interest, he said, "What's that?" "It is a pleasant day," repeated the young man, suddenly realizing the dreadful insignificance of the statement. "I did not quite hear you," explained the Colonel, leaning forward with anxiety. The young man turned very red, and looked as if he was about to descend into the bowels of the earth. "I said it was a easant day," he again stammered, raisng his voice and shivering at the sound. The Colonel's hand went up to his ear, 'Really, sir," he said in a bland manner, I am afraid you will have to speak a little louder." The young man grew redder than ever. How gladly he would have turned and fled; how bitterly he regretted not keeping the information to himself. But the Colonel stood waiting; and raising himself by his toes, the young man shrilly screamed: "It is a pleasant day." 'The Colonel heard this, and always been truthful and kind-hearted, promptly coincided, and the young man behind for those dependent on you someretreated amid the encouraging smiles of the populace.

A deaf-mute, who emigrated to this country some time since, being thrown ed up into the suburbs of New York, and before he knew it. he was in the middle of the grounds of the New York Institute. He had a dog with him, and he led it by a chain. It was a very beautiful dog, of a brownish color, and he said he picked it up somewhere in Great Britain. He seemed much attached to it. But when he got on the Institution grounds, he didn't know where he was, and seeing a group of deaf-mutes at a distance he walked to them and pulled out his slate and asked them if they could give him work, stating at the same time that he was deaf and dumb. Explanations ensued, and of course the slate was done away. with. He did not know much of signs, and was not well educated, but he managed, tolerably well to communicate with his new friends. He stated that he had been roving round the world considerably; he had been in Australia, a good ways over Europe, and had finally gravitated to America. He had found work after he landed, but the sudden panic had taken away his employment, as it had that of thousands of other workmen. He was much interested in the Institution, and made a list of all the studies pursued, though with what intent we cannot determine. Finally, finding he could not obtain work, he departed with his dog, to which he had

An old Man's Gold.

The Utica Observer of the 20th says An old gentleman, who registered him self as E. A. Wood, of Othrington, England, arrived at Baggs Hotel yesterday. He was deaf and dumb, and was accompanied by a valet or companion. He carried with him two iron safes which contained $38,900 in gold. They were expressed to Utica on the Del. L. & W. RR., and the charges were $35. The old gentleman watched the porters as they moved the safes to his room, and when they took them to the cars again. He remained until 5 P. M., when he and his companion, with the safes, departed for to Syracuse with so much money. He them. acted very singular, but did not leave much gold in Utica.

I ask your attention to the fact that there is no established school in our State for the education of her deaf and dumb children. They are sent abroad to be educated. New Jersey pays to other States $300 a year for each pupil. Our State has wisely provided for her other children by establishing public schools. Why should she not have her mute children also within her jurisdiction, and not send them so far from their Half a century ago our Legislature passed an act for the purpose, but unfortunately the bill remained unexecuted. Reports from New York, Pennsylvania and Connecticut institutions for the deaf-mutes, show these schools to be overcrowded with pupils of their own. Their directors, to prevent this, have resolved not to receive any children from other States. The New York Institution has. in fact, at this time, a population of over five hundred people. Therefore, we must have one of our own. By doing so, it would save the State a great deal of money, and be greatly to the advantage of all.

According to the recent United States ensus, there are about one hundred and fifty mutes in the State between the age of ten and twenty years. This number is sufficiently large to establish a deafmute institute.

In my humble opinion an institution can be established and conducted in this State in an economical manner, costing less than educating her children abroad Do have our unfortunate mutes educated Watertown. He knew better than to go at home, where their parents can visit

Another Miracle Declared-

The Paris Univers says the extraordinary favor accorded to a young girl at Blois, who was a deaf-mute from her birth, but was made whole at Lourdes. has been the subject of an episcopal inquiry. A commission was appointed to investigate the miracle on the following heads: The past and present state of the child, and the course of cure; whether means or circumstances purely natural might have brought the result; the conditions necessary to make the cure a miracle; whether, in the present case, the result shown should be considered as a miracle proper or as one of these surmiracle proper or as one of those surprising favors which the Church is not accustomed to regard as miracles, and which it ranges among the extraordinary blessings of heaven. After long and minute investigation on eath the Commission has given in its opinion that the mission has given in its opinion that the cure is really a miracle. The Bishop, considering all the facts, has declared that it must be so regarded.

An Ingenious Boy .- We were lately shown a curiosity in the shape of a sewing-machine made entirely of wood. It was whittled out of ordinary pine with an ordinary jackknife by an ordinary boy-no, not an ordinary boy; it was the handiwork of a deaf and dumb boy who resides in Massachusetts. A machine was left at the house of the boy by an agent, and the lad, with considerabl ingenuity, made a counterpart of the machine, and did it wholly with a jack-knife. -Hartford Times.
